

LAST EDITION.
DARK FOR FANNING.

He Boasted Saturday Midnight that
He Had Killed Mrs. Taylor.

The Murderer's Razor Found Near Where the Deed Was Done.

Statements by His Roommate of Fanning's Confession.

Police Captain Carpenter and Detective Doyle, of the East Eighty-ninth street station, this morning completed a chain of circumstantial evidence which makes it appear that Henry C. Fanning was the murderer of Mrs. Emily Taylor, at Ninety-sixth street and Park avenue, Saturday night.

Police Captain Carpenter and Detective Doyle, of the East Eighty-ninth street station, this morning completed a chain of circumstantial evidence which makes it appear that Henry C. Fanning was the murderer of Mrs. Emily Taylor, at Ninety-sixth street and Park avenue, Saturday night.

THE RAZOR FOUND TO-DAY.

The additional evidence in the shape of a positive and sworn statement of McMillen, Fanning's roommate, to the effect that the latter came to him at 12 o'clock Saturday night in the Harmon Hotel and told him he had just killed Mrs. Taylor.

This startling statement is corroborated by the finding by the detectives of the broken-bladed razor with which the murderer perpetrated his bloody work.

McMillen was arrested by Detectives Doyle and Keefe in the Harmon Hotel yesterday afternoon and taken before Capt. Carpenter at the Eighty-ninth street station.

When questioned by the officer McMillen said that he had something to tell about Mr. Taylor's murder which had been troubling him very much.

He made a sworn statement to Capt. Carpenter, which, summarized, is as follows:

"Fanning came to my room about 12 o'clock on Saturday night, April 18, and said to me that he had killed Mrs. Taylor. He said he had met her at Ninety-sixth street and Park avenue, that evening, and had walked with her up to Ninety-sixth street and Park avenue, where he gave her a jab with the razor and completed the job. He threw the razor across the place, and that ended the matter."

"He gave me a shirt Sunday morning, and asked me to have it laundered. I took the shirt to a Chinese laundry on Third avenue above One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street on the east side.

CITY NEWS TERSLY TOLD.
To-Day's Record of Minor Happenings About Town.

Chronicles Briefly Drawn from Note Book and Docket.

His Fight Increased Suspicion.
A young man giving the name of Charles Eubel of 449 West Thirty-eighth street, was remanded at Jefferson Market this morning to enable the police to investigate him. He was arrested as a suspicious person by Detective Thomas McCallahan on Eighth avenue at 5 o'clock this morning. He sought to regain his liberty and had to be cuffed into submission.

Raided a Gambling House.
Four prisoners, giving their names as John Hill, William Brown, John Thompson and John Williams, were held at the Tombs this morning for examination on the charge of being inmates of a gambling house at 120 West Twenty-ninth street. The place was raided last night by Detective McCallahan and Police-man Scholten, and a quantity of gambling paraphernalia was seized.

When Thieves Fall Out.
Joseph Dwyer, of Houston and West streets, and James O'Brien, of 188 Mulberry street, were held at the Tombs this morning on a charge of robbery. They were caught fighting on the street last night, and O'Brien accused Dwyer of stealing a silver watch from him at 180 Mulberry street. Michael Garibaldi, who had been robbed Sunday night, testified the watch.

Got a Good Meal Anyhow.
Frank J. Kelly, who says he is a telegraph operator, was held at Jefferson Market this morning, charged with beating the Fifth Avenue Hotel. He walked into the hotel yesterday evening last night and went up to the top of the house, thence down the main staircase to the dining-room where he sat down with the regular staff to dinner. He ate a good meal and then ran out through the front door.

Ruff Was Hit With a Brick.
Charles Walter, a laborer living at 179 East Houston street, was held in the East Street Police Court this morning, charged with having struck John Huff, of 182 Orchard street, with a brick, while the latter was passing the corner of Houston and Orchard streets Sunday evening.

Deaths to Be Investigated.
William McMillen was found dead at 5 o'clock this morning in a coal office at 410 E. at Seventy-fourth street, where he had been accustomed to sleep. The coroner was called to investigate the case of Nellie Kelly, who died Sunday in her room at 32 Mulberry street, this morning.

Out by an Italian Watchman.
During a fight at Ninety-sixth street and First avenue shortly after midnight this morning Matthew Tremberger, of 1430 Avenue A, was out on the left hand with a knife by the Italian watchman, who lives at 410 Mulberry and Fifty-first street, near Morris avenue. He was arrested.

Dutch Reformed Church Closes.
The morning session of the classes of the Dutch Reformed Church of New York, in the Collegiate Church, Twenty-ninth street and Fifth avenue, was devoted to religious services. The afternoon session was devoted to the singing of hymns.

Fish Commissioners' Work.
The Fish Commissioners met to-day in this city. The reports showed that up to April 9 there had been shipped to the coast six carloads of fish, valued at $2,700,000. The total catch of fish was 3,500,000 whitefish, 3,500,000 salmon, and 3,500,000 trout.

May Stop His Career of Crime.
Twenty-year-old Christopher Heimerger, of 3032 Third avenue, who with two other boys was arrested at the Tombs this morning on the charge of being inmates of a gambling house at 120 West Twenty-ninth street, was released on $5000 bail.

Reunion of Confederate Veterans.
The survivors of the Third Georgia Regiment, now in this city and yesterday the day of the reunion of the Confederate Veterans of the New York Camp of Confederate Veterans at the Hotel Brunswick.

Old John Thompson's Funeral.
Rev. A. Walpole Warren conducted funeral services this morning over the body of John Thompson, the famous old Wall Street editor and publisher of the Evening World, at the funeral home of John Thompson, 100 West Wall Street.

Caught Robbing the Clothline.
James Burke, of 344 Cherry street, who was caught stealing some shirts from a clothline in the rear of 31 Catherine street yesterday, was remanded at Jefferson Market this morning on a charge of larceny.

Burned Estate and Horse.
Fire destroyed Coal Dealer John Grogan's stable at 1084 and 1086 Grand street, Brooklyn, at 8 o'clock this morning, resulting in the death of a horse. The adjoining building, No. 1086, was also destroyed. Total loss about $5,000.

He Thinks They're After Him.
Stephen O'Donnell, 318 Monroe street, was committed in East Market Police Court this morning, for examination as to a charge of being a vagrant. He says he is being followed by persons intent on killing him.

Run Over and Killed a Girl.
Frederick Krueger, a driver of one of Pfenninger's freight wagons, was arrested and committed without bail this morning charged with the killing of a girl, who was run over by his wagon at 100 West Wall Street, Jersey City, who died from her injuries.

Grace for the Excise Commissioners.
The Excise Commissioners were to have proceeded to the new building to-day, in the Over and Terminus, but as the court has been adjourned until Monday because of Judge Barrett's illness, they will not be heard before that day.

Held for Killing a Child.
Car-Driver Michael Leonard was to have proceeded to the new building to-day by Coroner Schuchman, charged with causing the death of three-year-old Sam Kaplan, of 734 Second avenue, by running over her with his car.

Mrs. Darce Wants Divorce.
Mary E. Darce to-day brought suit in Brooklyn City Court for absolute divorce from her husband, Henry Darce, and naming Louise O'Neill as the co-defendant. Mrs. Darce is well known in Williamsburg.

AFTER KERRY KATE'S HOARD.
Alleged Will Made by the Old James Street Woman Miser.

Confesses that She Kidnapped McCue's Little Girl and Gives Her Half.

Receipts for the $4,700 in money and bank receipts left by Kerry Kate Roach, the Fourth Ward miser who starved to death, are beginning to be heard from.

Kerry Kate died April 4 at Chambers Street Hospital, having been taken there the day before from the corner of 20 East street, where she had lived and hoarded her gold for forty years.

Her brother, John Roach, himself an old man at Killarney, Ireland, is so very poor that he is unable to come to New York to prosecute his claim to the septuagenarian miser's property, and now there turns up receipts for the money and bank receipts left by Kerry Kate Roach, the Fourth Ward miser who starved to death, are beginning to be heard from.

These were the last words of two young people, who died in each other's arms, in a letter addressed to "Coroner."

On the cooling slabs at the undertaking establishment of Patterson & Flower, 350 Fourth avenue, lay the forms of P. at Bedford and Elsa Danneberg, clad in their night robes, the victims of a most elaborately prepared double suicide, waiting for the order that will consign them to the Potter's Field.

A tall, handsome, blue-eyed, intellectual-looking man of twenty-five wrote in the register of the Grand Union Hotel San Francisco at 10 o'clock yesterday and left New York. "Then he asked for a first-class room in the picturesque English of a cultured German."

He was accompanied by a petite woman of about twenty-two years, with black hair, dark eyes, pure complexion and pretty features. They had as baggage only a small suitcase, and were given to Room 8, on the third floor, for which the young man paid $3, and thither they went to die.

At 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon they rang for a haberdashery, and Peter H. Duncan responded, afterwards taking two bottles of beer and glasses to the room.

At 8:30 last evening, smelling the odor of gas, Duncan climbed up to the room, and peering in, discovered that the bed had been moved into the middle of the room, and that the guests were lying on the bed as if asleep.

They were dead. Two rubber tubes had been fastened to the corners in the chamber, a pair of cat's paws of yellow silk were in the room, and the other end of the tube to make them last. The other end of the tube to make them last. The other end of the tube to make them last.

"Do you know, Kate," he says, "I have lost my child and cannot find her, but I would know her out of a thousand by the little mark on her left leg."

"He felt very badly about the loss of the child, and the little one used to call me 'mamma,' I made up my mind that before I became helpless I would return to this girl if she could be found, the two gold sovereigns which he had been the luck of my life, as well as one-half of my money and other valuables which are of no use to me."

"If she does not live my entire wealth will go to John Roach, Killarney, Ireland. But if this girl is alive she must have, I wish her to have, and the first two sovereigns as seed in the home or a quieted petition."

"Moreover, if John Roach, of Ireland, does not live when I die then my entire wealth will go to this child, as there is a great deal of it was the poor mother's money, which she gave me to take care of."

"If she is alive I want her to have all my trinkets as she must be a lady like her mother. I hope all this will be carried out as I wish."

"I do not regret this to this Margaret McCue, if she lives, all the trinkets, along with the child, and the gold sovereigns, will go to the top of the pillow, and also the bank book that contains money to the amount of $2,700, which was her mother's money, which she gave me to take care of."

"If this girl can be found she has a small apple seed bismark on the left jaw and also peculiar shaped knees, as she fell down stairs with me and dislocated both her knees. I hope if the child ever comes to the eyes of this girl, let her come right on to New York and claim what is hers--one-half of my own wealth being given to her besides the bank book which contains her mother's money. I hope she will forgive me, as I think God will it for the best."

"Adieu, my loving child, if alive, I dare I may say more, but no. Adieu, little Maggie. (Signed.) KERRY ROACH."

"Read of 69 James street, New York." Beneath this and on the other side of the paper are the following additional notes: When this McCue took the little girl away he also took the marriage papers that I was keeping for the child with the money of her mother. I know I won't live long and I want this done right."

IT WAS A SUICIDE TRYST.
Paul and Elsa Loved Each Other and Died Together.

Coroner Schuchman Opens the Letter Left by the Grand Union Hotel Couple.

"We love each other. It is our own will to leave the misery of this world. The only wish we have is to be buried in one grave. Money, we have none left, but our creditors can be paid by the sale of the goods that we leave. We think that the money thus obtained will fulfil our last wish. Further, we wish as little society as possible."

"E. DANNEBERG."
"P. AT BEDFORD."

These were the last words of two young people, who died in each other's arms, in a letter addressed to "Coroner."

On the cooling slabs at the undertaking establishment of Patterson & Flower, 350 Fourth avenue, lay the forms of P. at Bedford and Elsa Danneberg, clad in their night robes, the victims of a most elaborately prepared double suicide, waiting for the order that will consign them to the Potter's Field.

A tall, handsome, blue-eyed, intellectual-looking man of twenty-five wrote in the register of the Grand Union Hotel San Francisco at 10 o'clock yesterday and left New York. "Then he asked for a first-class room in the picturesque English of a cultured German."

He was accompanied by a petite woman of about twenty-two years, with black hair, dark eyes, pure complexion and pretty features. They had as baggage only a small suitcase, and were given to Room 8, on the third floor, for which the young man paid $3, and thither they went to die.

At 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon they rang for a haberdashery, and Peter H. Duncan responded, afterwards taking two bottles of beer and glasses to the room.

At 8:30 last evening, smelling the odor of gas, Duncan climbed up to the room, and peering in, discovered that the bed had been moved into the middle of the room, and that the guests were lying on the bed as if asleep.

They were dead. Two rubber tubes had been fastened to the corners in the chamber, a pair of cat's paws of yellow silk were in the room, and the other end of the tube to make them last. The other end of the tube to make them last.

"Do you know, Kate," he says, "I have lost my child and cannot find her, but I would know her out of a thousand by the little mark on her left leg."

"He felt very badly about the loss of the child, and the little one used to call me 'mamma,' I made up my mind that before I became helpless I would return to this girl if she could be found, the two gold sovereigns which he had been the luck of my life, as well as one-half of my money and other valuables which are of no use to me."

"If she does not live my entire wealth will go to John Roach, Killarney, Ireland. But if this girl is alive she must have, I wish her to have, and the first two sovereigns as seed in the home or a quieted petition."

"Moreover, if John Roach, of Ireland, does not live when I die then my entire wealth will go to this child, as there is a great deal of it was the poor mother's money, which she gave me to take care of."

"If she is alive I want her to have all my trinkets as she must be a lady like her mother. I hope all this will be carried out as I wish."

"I do not regret this to this Margaret McCue, if she lives, all the trinkets, along with the child, and the gold sovereigns, will go to the top of the pillow, and also the bank book that contains money to the amount of $2,700, which was her mother's money, which she gave me to take care of."

"If this girl can be found she has a small apple seed bismark on the left jaw and also peculiar shaped knees, as she fell down stairs with me and dislocated both her knees. I hope if the child ever comes to the eyes of this girl, let her come right on to New York and claim what is hers--one-half of my own wealth being given to her besides the bank book which contains her mother's money. I hope she will forgive me, as I think God will it for the best."

"Adieu, my loving child, if alive, I dare I may say more, but no. Adieu, little Maggie. (Signed.) KERRY ROACH."

"Read of 69 James street, New York." Beneath this and on the other side of the paper are the following additional notes: When this McCue took the little girl away he also took the marriage papers that I was keeping for the child with the money of her mother. I know I won't live long and I want this done right."

"New York and Boston papers please copy. Roach."

PINKERTONS TO THE SCENE.
Seven Carloads of Team Sent to the Connellville Coke Region.

(Special to the Evening World.)
PITTSBURGH, April 21.--A close contest is on here to-day in the election for village trustees. There are three tickets in the field, and there is prospect of a very full vote.

New Rochelle's Charter Election.
NEW ROCHELLE, April 21.--A close contest is on here to-day in the election for village trustees. There are three tickets in the field, and there is prospect of a very full vote.

Log date of last year, as indicated by the thermometer at Perry's pharmacy.

UNCLE SAM PAID HIGH.
New Appraisers' Stores Site Lots Bought First by Barney Biglin's Friend.

One Hundred and Twenty Per Cent. Profit in a Few Weeks.

Mr. Biglin and His Friend Lindley Say Their Motives Were Pure.

Real estate dealers were in a state of considerable commotion over the report of the sale of at least part of the property selected by the Treasury Department as the site of the new appraisers' stores.

The site chosen by the late Secretary Windom early in the winter comprises the block bounded by Christopher, Barrow, Washington and Greenwich streets, and is covered at the present time by an aggregation of small structures, many of them in a very shabby and tumble-down condition.

There are twenty-two lots in the entire block, and seventeen of these are owned in fee by the corporation of Trinity Church. The others belong to private owners.

According to the records of real estate transfers in the Register's office two of these lots fronting on Washington street, and owned respectively by Mrs. Margaret A. Chamberlain, of 603 Washington street, and William Stark, of 605 Washington street, were recently sold to the Government for the sum of $95,000.

They were both purchased from their original owners not long ago by Lawyer John Lindley, of the Washington Building, at $22,500 apiece, and the transaction apparently represents a profit of $72,500 to the last seller.

Previous to the time of the selection of this site for the proposed Government building, Lindley, who is a well-known real estate broker, had secured, according to location, and the enormous advance represented by the prices at which the recent transfers were made has amazed the old-time members of the real estate fraternity and has given rise to the suspicion that there is a big political deal concealed in the transaction.

BARNEY BIGLIN IN IT.
According to Mrs. Chamberlain, the owner of one of the pieces of property referred to, Mr. Lindley, who eventually purchased the lot from her, was introduced to her by Barney Biglin, the well-known Republican leader.

Mr. Biglin's offices are located in Washington and Leroy streets, only a block away from the new appraisers' stores site, and he is well acquainted with all the people in the neighborhood.

The sale of the lot for $22,500 to Mr. Lindley was negotiated, as Mrs. Chamberlain says, through her lawyer, John Vincent, and she thought she was getting a very good price for it.

HE WAS MR. BIGLIN'S FRIEND, TOO.
It also appears from the statements of Mr. Burns, the owner of the other lot, that he made the acquaintance of Mr. Lindley through Mr. Biglin, who was an old friend of his. He says that he afterwards met Mr. Lindley, the latter being in the employ of the Treasury Department, and that Mr. Lindley at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and that when he was asked to name his price he said $22,500, which was afterwards agreed upon.

Both of these persons were greatly surprised when they heard that the property sold to them for $45,000 had been recovered to the Treasury Department for $95,000, and could not but be amazed at the great advance which had been secured.

AL SQUARE, SAYS LINDLEY.
Mr. Lindley, who has negotiated the sale of these pieces of property to the Government, denies very emphatically that there is any one interested in the transaction excepting himself.

"It is true," he said, "that I was introduced to these parties by Mr. Biglin, who has known them for years, but Mr. Biglin himself does not possess one penny's worth of interest in the property or in the transactions themselves."

"The securing of these lots for the Government involves many complications, and the story that I made $50,000 out of the transaction is ridiculous."

"A GREAT MANY EXPENSES."
"Then there are a great many expenses connected with the insuring of the title and the payment of damages, to persons who occupy the premises for business purposes which will bring the amount of such expenditures up to a very high figure."

"Another thing which has not been taken into account is the fact that these two sales represent only a portion of the transactions in which I have been interested in securing to the Government the new site for the appraisers' stores, and which includes much of the property owned by Trinity Church."

"In all of these there was the same difficulty, that of securing the fee and the leasehold rights in each case, and the price which is eventually paid by the Government for the property represents not only the purchase price of the fee, but the cost of acquiring all the other rights and passing a good title."

"The transactions are all perfectly open and above-board, and they are all on record so that any one who takes the trouble to look into them and examine them can see for himself just what has been done. There is nothing at all in this talk about other parties being interested."

"I am under bonds to the amount of $10,000 to deliver the property to the Government, and as I stated before I cannot tell how I am going to come out. That is all I have to say about the matter."

MR. BIGLIN SAYS IT'S NOT A DEAL.
Mr. Biglin, who was found at his office in Leroy street this morning, denied that he was in any way interested in the sale or purchase of property for the site of the new appraisers' stores.

"I don't know anything about it in the first place," he said, "and in the second place, if anybody has been able to turn over real estate in so short a time and at such a nice profit as report says, I should regard him as mighty lucky."

"I should like to get such a chance myself. I do not deny that it will be a good thing for my business to have the appraisers' stores up in this neighborhood, and I am glad they are to be here."

"There is no truth whatever, so far as I know, that there has been any political deal in this matter, and I am sure that the people for whom I have bought the property, but further than this I have no interest in these real estate transactions, and know nothing at all about the details."

WHILE THERE'S LIFE THERE'S HOPE.
Uncle Sam Paid High.

New Appraisers' Stores Site Lots Bought First by Barney Biglin's Friend.

One Hundred and Twenty Per Cent. Profit in a Few Weeks.

Mr. Biglin and His Friend Lindley Say Their Motives Were Pure.

Real estate dealers were in a state of considerable commotion over the report of the sale of at least part of the property selected by the Treasury Department as the site of the new appraisers' stores.

The site chosen by the late Secretary Windom early in the winter comprises the block bounded by Christopher, Barrow, Washington and Greenwich streets, and is covered at the present time by an aggregation of small structures, many of them in a very shabby and tumble-down condition.

There are twenty-two lots in the entire block, and seventeen of these are owned in fee by the corporation of Trinity Church. The others belong to private owners.

According to the records of real estate transfers in the Register's office two of these lots fronting on Washington street, and owned respectively by Mrs. Margaret A. Chamberlain, of 603 Washington street, and William Stark, of 605 Washington street, were recently sold to the Government for the sum of $95,000.

They were both purchased from their original owners not long ago by Lawyer John Lindley, of the Washington Building, at $22,500 apiece, and the transaction apparently represents a profit of $72,500 to the last seller.

Previous to the time of the selection of this site for the proposed Government building, Lindley, who is a well-known real estate broker, had secured, according to location, and the enormous advance represented by the prices at which the recent transfers were made has amazed the old-time members of the real estate fraternity and has given rise to the suspicion that there is a big political deal concealed in the transaction.

BARNEY BIGLIN IN IT.
According to Mrs. Chamberlain, the owner of one of the pieces of property referred to, Mr. Lindley, who eventually purchased the lot from her, was introduced to her by Barney Biglin, the well-known Republican leader.

Mr. Biglin's offices are located in Washington and Leroy streets, only a block away from the new appraisers' stores site, and he is well acquainted with all the people in the neighborhood.

The sale of the lot for $22,500 to Mr. Lindley was negotiated, as Mrs. Chamberlain says, through her lawyer, John Vincent, and she thought she was getting a very good price for it.

HE WAS MR. BIGLIN'S FRIEND, TOO.
It also appears from the statements of Mr. Burns, the owner of the other lot, that he made the acquaintance of Mr. Lindley through Mr. Biglin, who was an old friend of his. He says that he afterwards met Mr. Lindley, the latter being in the employ of the Treasury Department, and that Mr. Lindley at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and that when he was asked to name his price he said $22,500, which was afterwards agreed upon.

Both of these persons were greatly surprised when they heard that the property sold to them for $45,000 had been recovered to the Treasury Department for $95,000, and could not but be amazed at the great advance which had been secured.

AL SQUARE, SAYS LINDLEY.
Mr. Lindley, who has negotiated the sale of these pieces of property to the Government, denies very emphatically that there is any one interested in the transaction excepting himself.

"It is true," he said, "that I was introduced to these parties by Mr. Biglin, who has known them for years, but Mr. Biglin himself does not possess one penny's worth of interest in the property or in the transactions themselves."

"The securing of these lots for the Government involves many complications, and the story that I made $50,000 out of the transaction is ridiculous."

"A GREAT MANY EXPENSES."
"Then there are a great many expenses connected with the insuring of the title and the payment of damages, to persons who occupy the premises for business purposes which will bring the amount of such expenditures up to a very high figure."

"Another thing which has not been taken into account is the fact that these two sales represent only a portion of the transactions in which I have been interested in securing to the Government the new site for the appraisers' stores, and which includes much of the property owned by Trinity Church."

"In all of these there was the same difficulty, that of securing the fee and the leasehold rights in each case, and the price which is eventually paid by the Government for the property represents not only the purchase price of the fee, but the cost of acquiring all the other rights and passing a good title."

"The transactions are all perfectly open and above-board, and they are all on record so that any one who takes the trouble to look into them and examine them can see for himself just what has been done. There is nothing at all in this talk about other parties being interested."

"I am under bonds to the amount of $10,000 to deliver the property to the Government, and as I stated before I cannot tell how I am going to come out. That is all I have to say about the matter."

MR. BIGLIN SAYS IT'S NOT A DEAL.
Mr. Biglin, who was found at his office in Leroy street this morning, denied that he was in any way interested in the sale or purchase of property for the site of the new appraisers' stores.

"I don't know anything about it in the first place," he said, "and in the second place, if anybody has been able to turn over real estate in so short a time and at such a nice profit as report says, I should regard him as mighty lucky."

"I should like to get such a chance myself. I do not deny that it will be a good thing for my business to have the appraisers' stores up in this neighborhood, and I am glad they are to be here."

BULLS RUN THE WHEAT PIT.
Yesterday's High Prices Exceeded at the Produce Exchange.

GRABBING CITY HALL PARK.
The Municipal Building Patronage Bill Rushed Through the House.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
ALBANY, April 21.--The Municipal bill, to allow a new municipal building to be erected in City Hall Park, has passed that body.

John E. Brodsky who has had a number of his pet measures passed by Tammany votes, recited before voting for this Tammany measure, as did the Kings County representatives who were under like obligations.

That Mr. Hildreth, the only Republican member for this city, should vote for this Tammany bill measure is considered strange, but his name is recorded in the affirmative.

Not one cent for a site, but millions for patronage, was the motto of the bosses, and their representatives in the lower House heard and obeyed.

For the very reason that this is a political measure and will, if allowed to become a law, permit Tammany Hall to expend many thousands of dollars next year during a presidential campaign, the Republican Senate may be depended on to prevent its further progress.

The bill would permit the tearing down of the present City Hall.

FOREIGN NEWS OF THE DAY.
Mutiny Extends to the British Grenadiers at Chelsea.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
LONDON, April 21.--Mutiny has broken out in the Third Battalion of Grenadiers, stationed at Chelsea.

For some days past, the men have maintained discontent, and the feeling culminated this morning, when the first company refused to go out for parade.

Four other companies, at St. George's barracks, also refused to obey the 8 o'clock call, claiming the order was contrary to precedent.

One of the oldest members of the Grenadiers was placed under arrest.

Failure of Arrol Brothers, a Big Iron Firm of Glasgow.